Only a short time ago Postmaster Gen-J. L. Bristow, made a visit to Cuba and inspected the mail service in that island. PLAN TO START THE BATTLE ABBEY FUND

Confederate Veterans to Ee Asked to Assist.

Donation for an Old Project Yet in Their Hands.

Money Contributed Years Ago to Establish a Building for Southern War Relies.

A plan has just been proposed whereby the Battle Abbey projectors may secure their first donation for the proposed structure. A great deal remains to be done be fore the donation can be secured, however, and the money may not be forthcoming at Several years ago Charles Broadway Rouse, the well-known New York philanthropist, donated $100,000, which was to be used for the construction of a building to receive the war relics of the Confederacy. This donation has been subsequently increased to $500,000, and the building has not yet been decided on.

The matter is in the hands of the Confederate Veterans' Association, and it is hought that if the plan for a National Battle Abbey were presented to them in the proper light they would release their claim on the money, and allow it to go as a donation from the association toward the fund being raised for the construction of the national building. It is believed by many of those interested that the association will agree to this donation, and if it can be secured it will help materially to can be secured it will help materially toward the realization of the plans of the promoters of the project.

The money was subscribed in the first instance with the understanding that the building was to have a place among the sights of the National Capital. It would have required the expenditure of a great deat of money to kee the lead of the deal of money to keep the place in order after it was established, and as the Government could hardly be expected to support such an institution the scheme fell Then an offer of $100,000 was made to the city which would be select-ed as a site for the structure in the place of Washington. Richmond was the spot designated by a vote of the Confederate veterans, but there have been no plans prepared and nothing has been done toward the building of the Confederate Abbey.

The new building now proposed will have a decided advantage over the old plan, it is claimed, because it will be national in every respect. The great events of the Confederacy will be as faithfully and as carefully depicted as the events in the his-tory of the North, and the dream of Mr. Rouse will be realized in a manner that even he has never imagined.

"I do not see what difficulty should be encountered in securing the Rouse donaiton," said a prominent Southern man to a Times reporter today. "Of course, there will be objections raised, but I do not think that people should allow the feelings of years gone by to stand in the way of the realization of such a grand project as the National Battle Abbey. The episodes of the Confederacy are as much a portion of the history of the United States as the battle of Yorktown, and it seems to me that the of Yorkiown, and it seems to me that when such as scheme is proposed there should be no opposition. Light Horse Harry Lee, an ancestor of the great Robert E. Lee, was a great man during the Revolution. He was a Southern man and owned a lot of slaves. I think he would have fought with the Confederates had he lived, and yet he is one of the heroes of lived, and yet he is one of the heroes of the Revolution.

the Revolution.

"Gen. Joe Wheeler was a Confederate cavalry general of the highest order and is now a major general in the United States Army. No one will dispute his patriotism or his right to a high place in the National Battle Abbey. Such men will be immortalized in the National Abbey, so why should the Confederate veterans stand. why should the Confederate veterans stanway of a salendid scheme of such a scope and character. I am sure I can find "The Battle Abbey would show that whether they fought for the North or the South, whether they were Confederate or Union in their sympathies, the men of the '60's were Americans one and all and fought and bled for the cause that was nearest their hearts as only Americans can fight. If this is fittingly shown in the new building, as it certainly shall be if the plans of the promoters of the institution are carried out, and as it ought to be, then I think any person who would stand in the way of the project would be following false ideas of patriotism and I do not be leve the Confederate veterans will do so.'

The attention of the grand encampment of the Confederate Veterans Association will be called to the matter at its next meeting and it is confidently expected that they will agree to allow their fund to go with the other donations that will soon be received for the erection of the national building in this city.

ARRAIGNED FOR ARSON. William H. Mooney Enters a Plea of

Not Guilty. William H. Mooney, who was indicted resterday by the grand jury for arson, was arraigned today in Criminal Court No. 1, before Justice Clabaugh, and pleaded ot gullty to the charge.

He is accused with having attempted to burn the saloon of Martin Schneider, at the corner of D and Elghth Street south-east, on the night of March 22 last. It is alleged by the prosecution that because of some trouble between Mooney and Schneider the former purchased a bottle of coal oil, and having saturated part of Schneider's building with it was about to apply a match to it when he was detected.

Mooney denies this and esserts that the charge that he had any intention of setting fire to Schneider's saloon is without foundation. It is said that he admits having purchased a bottle of coal oil on the day in question, but asserts that it was only preparatory to a little game of draw poker which he and some of his friends had ar-ranged to take place at his own home on the night of March 22.

William Abbott and Mary Wilson, charged with adultery, pleaded not guilty, and Mary Brown, charged with the murder of her sister's infant child, on January 23 last, also pleaded not guilty.

THE ART OF PERFECT LAUNDERING!

THE practical part of laundering can be ac-quired—but the PERFEXT WORK, the ARTISTIC TOUCH, is the result of years of experience. We have experts for our various departments people whose business it is to give garments their pre-paratory immersion—and those who are allotted to impart the superme and important finishing touches. Our soft-finish "anti-swear" butromboles are a feature peculiar to TOUMAN work, and save patience, time, and fingernalls. We'd be glad to have your next package to practically illustrate the merits of our work.
